Setter Call Script

Opening → Value → Demo → Pricing → Expectations → Booking

Read the shaded lines out loud. Grey italic lines are cues, not words to say. Fill [brackets] only with details you have checked are true for this business.

1 · Opening

SAY

Hey, this is [Your name] calling from Vanguard. I'm a local website developer. Is the owner working today?

SAY

The reason I'm calling is that I came across [Business Name] on Google while I was looking for [industry/businesses] in the area, and I noticed [specific observation about their business]. I also noticed that you don't currently have a website.

So, what I've gone ahead and done is built you a free demo website. It's already done, and I'd love to schedule 15 minutes with you to walk you through it and show you what we've put together.

QUALIFY

Do you mind if I ask you a couple of quick questions?

Are you currently taking on any new customers, and how are most of your new customers finding you at the moment?

Listen. Note their exact words; you'll use them in the next section.

2 · Value Proposition

SAY

Cool. The reason I thought this could be particularly useful is [connect the website to their answers].

Tie it to what they just told you: attracting more customers, generating enquiries, showcasing their services, or improving their online presence.

3 · The Demo and Next Step

SAY

So, I've already built you the demo, and you're not committing to anything just by taking a look. It's a 15-minute showcase with our website expert, who will walk you through everything, answer any questions you have and discuss any specific recommendations you might have for your business.

That could include additional functionality such as online booking systems, galleries to showcase your work, or integrating the website with any CRM systems you're already using.

They'll also be able to show you what can be customised to suit your business and explain exactly what it would look like to get everything set up.

ASK, THEN STOP TALKING

Would tomorrow or the day after tomorrow work better for you?

4 · If They Ask About Pricing

SAY

In terms of pricing, it completely depends on what you're looking for and the specific functionality you might need. I'm not actually the person who makes those decisions, so I wouldn't want to give you an inaccurate figure.

The next step would be to jump on a quick 15-minute call with our website expert. They'll walk you through the demo, discuss any recommendations you have for your business and give you a much clearer idea of the costs involved, particularly if you're looking at things like online booking, galleries or CRM integrations.

The demo itself is completely free. There's absolutely no obligation to purchase anything. If you like what you see, you can discuss getting it set up with the expert. If it's not for you, that's absolutely fine too.

The great thing is that we handle the hosting ourselves, so you don't have to worry about managing the technical side. Once everything is agreed, we can typically get your website set up and live within just a couple of days.

ASK, THEN STOP TALKING

Would tomorrow or the day after tomorrow be better for a quick chat with the expert?

5 · Listen and Acknowledge

SAY

Listen carefully to their response and acknowledge what they say.

Yeah, absolutely, that makes sense.

I completely understand. That's actually one of the reasons we've gone ahead and built the demo beforehand, so you can see exactly what we're talking about rather than just having someone try to sell you an idea over the phone.

6 · Setting Expectations

SAY

So, just to explain how the call works, it'll be around 15 minutes with our website expert. They'll show you the demo we've already built, ask a few questions about your business, go through any changes or additional functionality you'd like and explain the pricing and what getting the website live would involve.

There's no obligation whatsoever. It's simply an opportunity to see what's possible and decide whether it's something you'd like to move forward with.

7 · Booking

ASK, THEN STOP TALKING

Perfect. I've got availability tomorrow or the day after tomorrow. Which of those would suit you better?

ASK, THEN STOP TALKING

And would morning or afternoon work best?

SAY

Brilliant, I'll get that arranged for you. What's the best email address to send the confirmation and meeting details to?

Perfect. I'll get that sent over now. Just let me know when you've received it.

Wait until they confirm it has arrived.

Brilliant, you're all booked in. Thanks for your time, [Name]. Speak soon!
